

Hospitals Implementing Shared Governance

B

The hospitals identified in this appendix are in different stages of implementing shared governance. They are listed here not because they are especially recommended but because they have committed their energy and resources to full implementation. These hospitals are but a small sample of those across the country that are implementing shared governance in one of its many forms.

It is estimated that over 1,000 hospitals and health care agencies are in some phase of implementing the partnership models typical of the shared governance concept. As the need to invest the professional worker grows in the workplace, more organizations will adapt new organizational and work models. If a site in your region is creating a worker partnership model or shared governance, contact the people there and begin the networking process of information sharing and relationship building. Those who have been involved in shared governance for some time have found that networking is helpful in building the concept of shared governance and avoiding pitfalls in its implementation.

Inclusion of a hospital in this listing does not indicate willingness to share or participate in information sharing or development assistance. However, in my experience few shared governance settings are unwilling to assist others in implementing the concept. Helping develop the concept is fundamental to the beliefs associated with the concept. Please be aware, however, that some agencies charge for their services and information. It is advisable to clarify this with any agency before asking for information or support.
